

Expert Terms

Qrise Instructor Terms, last updated September 23, 2025.

When you register as an instructor on the Qrise platform, you agree to comply with these Instructor Terms (the "Terms"). These Terms cover the aspects of the Qrise platform that are relevant to instructors and are incorporated by reference into our Terms of Use, which are the general rules governing your use of our Services. Capitalized terms not defined in these Terms have the meanings given in the Terms of Use.

By acting as an instructor, you enter into an agreement directly with Qrise, a company located in Cyprus, regardless of whether another Qrise affiliate processes your payments.

1. Instructor Obligations

As an instructor, you are responsible for your conduct and for all materials that you submit through the Services, including lectures, tests, coding exercises, sessions (see the "Coaching Services" section below), practice tests, assignments, resources, answers, course landing-page content, labs, assessments and announcements ("Submitted Content").

You represent and warrant that:

- you will keep your account information accurate and up to date;
- you have all required licences, rights, consents, approvals and authority necessary to grant Qrise the right to use your Submitted Content as described in these Terms and the Terms of Use;
- your Submitted Content does not misappropriate or infringe any third party intellectual-property right;
- you possess the qualifications, credentials and experience, including education, training, knowledge and skills, necessary to teach and provide the services offered through your Submitted Content and use of the Services; and
- you will provide services at a quality level consistent with the standards of your industry, profession or field of expertise and with generally accepted educational standards.

You agree that you will not:

- publish or upload unlawful, offensive, racist, hateful, sexist, pornographic, false, misleading, inaccurate, infringing, defamatory or libellous content or information, or engage in comparable conduct;
- publish or transmit unsolicited or unauthorised advertising, promotional materials, junk mail, spam or any other form of solicitation, whether commercial or otherwise, to any user or through the Services;
- use the Services for any activity other than providing educational and teaching services to students;
- engage in any activity that would require Qrise to obtain licences from or pay royalties to third parties, including public-performance royalties for music or sound recordings;
- embed or frame the Services, including by embedding a free version of a course, or otherwise circumvent the Services;
- impersonate another person or obtain unauthorised access to another person's account;
- interfere with or prevent other instructors from providing their services or content; or
- misuse Qrise resources, including support services.

2. Licence to Qrise

You grant Qrise the right to use your Submitted Content in accordance with the Terms of Use. This includes the right to add captions, subtitles or otherwise modify Submitted Content for accessibility. You also grant Qrise the right to sublicense rights in Submitted Content to third parties, including direct distribution to students or distribution through resellers, distributors, affiliated websites, dedicated application sites and paid advertising services on third-party platforms. The rights granted under the Terms of Use also include Qrise's right to apply generative and non-generative AI models and to improve non-generative AI models using your Submitted Content where necessary to maintain core Service functionality such as search and recommendations.

Unless otherwise stated, including under our Promotions Policy, you may remove all or part of your Submitted Content from the Services at any time. Except where specifically stated otherwise, Qrise's right to grant sublicences under this section will cease for new users 60 days after removal. However: (1) rights granted to students before removal remain effective under the applicable licences, including any lifetime-access rights; and (2) Qrise's right to use such Submitted Content for marketing purposes survives termination.

We may record and use all or part of your Submitted Content for quality control, delivery, marketing, advertising, demonstration or maintenance of the Services. You authorise Qrise to use your name, likeness, image and voice in connection with offering, providing, marketing, advertising, demonstrating and selling the Services, your Submitted Content or Qrise content, and you waive privacy, publicity or similar rights to the extent permitted by applicable law.

3. Trust and Safety

3.1 Trust and Safety Policies

You agree to comply with Qrise's Trust and Safety Policies, Restricted Topics Policy and any other content-quality standards or policies adopted by Qrise from time to time. You should review those policies periodically to remain compliant with any changes. Your use of the Services is subject to Qrise approval, which may be granted or withheld at our discretion.

We reserve the right to remove content, suspend payments, withhold funds and/or block instructors for any reason and at any time without prior notice, including where:

- the instructor or content does not comply with our policies or legal terms, including the Terms of Use;
- the content does not meet our quality standards or negatively affects the student experience;
- the instructor acts in a way that may harm Qrise, damage its reputation, bring it into public disrepute, involve it in scandal or make it an object of ridicule;
- the instructor uses the Services to engage in unfair competition, for example by promoting an off-platform business in violation of Qrise policies; or
- Qrise otherwise has reasonable grounds, in its discretion.

3.2 Co-instructors and Teaching Assistants

Qrise may allow you to add other users as co-instructors or teaching assistants for Submitted Content that you manage. When doing so, you agree to follow the applicable rules and guidelines. By adding a co-instructor or teaching assistant, you understand that you authorise that person to take certain actions affecting your Qrise account and Submitted Content. Their violation of Qrise policies may also affect your account and content. Qrise cannot advise on or mediate disputes between you and those users. Where a co-instructor has an assigned revenue share, that share is paid from your earned revenue share according to the percentages configured in your course-management settings at the time of purchase.

3.3 Relationship with Other Users

Instructors do not have a direct contractual relationship with students and will receive only the student data made available through the Services. You agree to use such data solely to provide services to those students on Qrise, not to request additional personal data, and not to store student personal data outside the Qrise platform. You agree to indemnify Qrise for losses arising from your use of student personal data.

3.4 Anti-Piracy

Qrise works with anti-piracy solution providers to protect your content from unauthorised use. You appoint Qrise and those providers as your agents to enforce copyrights in your content by submitting notices and taking action under the applicable laws of the Republic of Cyprus, the European Union and international copyright standards, as well as through other enforcement efforts. You authorise Qrise and its anti-piracy providers to submit notices on your behalf.

These rights remain in effect until you revoke them by emailing the designated Qrise email address from the address linked to your account. Revocation becomes effective 48 hours after receipt.

4. Pricing

4.1 Instructor Opportunities

Qrise may offer marketing programmes described in the Promotions Policy, including Qrise Advertising Programmes and Intelligent Services. You may also be offered the opportunity to provide Coaching Services as described below. Participation is free and may increase your potential earnings. You may change your participation status, although some opportunities may have additional requirements or withdrawal periods. Changes do not apply to campaigns already in progress.

4.2 Setting Prices

When creating Submitted Content for purchase on Qrise, you will be asked to select a base price (the "Base Price"). For some Submitted Content, the price may be selected from available price tiers. Premium instructors may also participate in Advertising Programmes.

If you do not participate in Advertising Programmes, we will set the price of your Submitted Content at no less than the Base Price or the closest local equivalent or mobile-app price. If you participate, certain Submitted Content may be offered at a discounted or tier price under the Promotions Policy.

The platform may convert prices into the user's currency using an internal exchange rate or the payment provider's rate.

For purchases through a mobile application, pricing is controlled by the mobile-platform provider's price matrix, and we select the tier closest to the applicable Base Price or promotional price. Because mobile platforms use their own currency-conversion rates, mobile prices may differ from conversions shown in other pricing matrices.

You authorise us to provide your Submitted Content without charge to Qrise employees, technology and commercial partners and where necessary to restore access for customers who previously purchased it. You understand that no compensation is payable in those cases.

4.3 Transaction Taxes

Where applicable law requires Qrise to collect national, regional or local sales, use, goods and services, value-added or similar taxes (collectively, "Transaction Taxes"), Qrise will collect and remit those taxes to the competent authorities. For mobile-app purchases, the relevant Transaction Taxes may be collected by the mobile platform, such as Apple's App Store or Google Play.

5. Payments and Payouts

5.1 Revenue Share

When a student purchases your Submitted Content, the gross sale amount is generally the amount actually received by Qrise from the student (the "Gross Amount"). For Coaching Services sold at a promotional price below the Base Price, Qrise may calculate the Gross Amount using the Base Price. However, where authorised adjustments such as mobile-platform pricing or currency conversion produce a sale price below the Base Price, the Gross Amount is based on the amount actually received by Qrise.

To calculate the net sale amount (the "Net Amount"), we deduct Transaction Taxes, applicable mobile-platform fees, a 3% service and processing fee for non-mobile sales (4% in Japan), and amounts paid to third parties in connection with instructor programmes.

For standard sales outside optional instructor programmes, Coaching Services, instructor coupon codes and course referral links, the Expert's remuneration is determined by the current Qrise tariffs and cooperation terms published on the platform or agreed in a separate agreement.

For Coaching Services, your revenue share is 80% of the Net Amount received for booked sessions that you completed, as determined by Qrise, less applicable deductions such as student refunds and reimbursements.

If we change these payment rates, we will provide 30 days' notice by clear means such as email or a notice through the Services.

If you participate in an instructor programme, the applicable revenue share may differ and will be specified in the Promotions Policy or the Qrise Intelligent Services Policy.

Qrise makes instructor payouts in US dollars (USD), regardless of the currency of sale. Qrise is not responsible for foreign-exchange fees, bank-transfer fees or other processing charges. Your revenue report will show the sale price in local currency and your converted earnings in USD.

5.2 Instructor Coupons and Course Referral Links

Qrise may allow you to create coupon codes and referral links offering certain Submitted Content to students at a discount or at the then-current Qrise price. Such codes and links are subject to restrictions and may not be distributed on third-party websites or otherwise offered in exchange for compensation. Additional conditions are set out in the Trust and Safety Policy.

When a student applies your coupon code or referral link at checkout, your revenue share is 97% of the Net Amount, less applicable deductions such as student refunds and reimbursements.

5.3 Receiving Payments

To receive timely payouts, you must maintain a valid PayPal or Payoneer account, or a valid bank account where available, and provide Qrise with the associated valid email address. You must also provide identification information and tax documentation required for payment. You authorise us to deduct applicable taxes from payouts. We may withhold payments or impose other consequences if proper identification or tax documentation is not provided. You are responsible for all taxes on your income.

Tax statements may be delivered electronically, and you consent to electronic delivery. They will be available in the "Taxes and Payout Settings" section of your instructor profile for at least three years, although the retention period may change. You may withdraw consent at any time by emailing the designated Qrise address from the email linked to your account, with the subject line "Withdrawal of consent to electronic delivery." If you do not consent, paper copies will be sent to your postal address. Documents are provided in PDF format. Electronic delivery requires an active Qrise account, internet access and software capable of opening, downloading and printing PDFs, such as

Adobe Reader.

Depending on the applicable revenue-share model, payments are made within 45 days after the end of the month in which either: (a) we received payment for the course or, for Coaching Services, for the completed session; or (b) the relevant course was used. If the amount payable is below USD 25, payment will be deferred until the total exceeds USD 25 or until the end of the calendar year, whichever occurs first.

You are responsible for determining whether you comply with Qrise requirements and applicable law. We may withhold payment in cases of established fraud, intellectual-property infringement, other legal violations or where payment is prohibited by law.

If we cannot transfer funds to your payment account within the period specified by applicable unclaimed-property laws, we may handle the funds in accordance with our legal obligations, including transferring them to the appropriate governmental authority.

5.4 Refunds

You acknowledge that students may receive refunds as described in the Terms of Use. Instructors do not earn revenue from transactions for which a refund has been issued.

6. Coaching Services

Qrise may provide students with access to coaching sessions through the Coaching Services. By participating, you agree to the additional terms in this section.

6.1 Session Setup and Availability

You may offer Coaching Services by configuring sessions through our instructor tools, including topics, descriptions, duration and availability. Coaching Services may not be available to all instructors and may be subject to limits, including a maximum number of sessions per day, at Qrise's discretion. You will be asked to select a base price for sessions.

You are responsible for maintaining an accurate availability schedule and attending all booked sessions. You may stop offering Coaching Services at any time by removing your availability, but this does not affect existing bookings.

6.2 Cancellation and Attendance

You may cancel a booked session at any time by notifying users through the platform. If you cancel or fail to attend, as determined by Qrise, you will not be paid for that session.

6.3 Conduct During Sessions

You are solely responsible for your conduct and disclosure of information during Coaching Services. Sessions must be consistent with your stated expertise and session description and must help students pursue the stated objectives. You are responsible for preparation and teaching methods.

You may use only the third-party videoconferencing and scheduling tools made available through the platform. You are responsible for adequate internet access and technical configuration. You may not record, reproduce or publish any session in whole or in part, or disclose session links, login details or other credentials.

You must not engage in inappropriate conduct; harass or insult anyone; make hostile, sexist or racist comments; engage in pornographic, unlawful or otherwise unacceptable conduct; disclose false, misleading or privacy-infringing information; record, reproduce or publish sessions; disrupt sessions; or insult students. These restrictions supplement those in the Terms of Use and the Instructor Obligations above.

6.4 Additional Tax Matters

Non-US instructors who submit a Form W-8 represent that Coaching Services will be provided exclusively from outside the United States and that relevant personnel and financial assets, including work premises and tools, will be located outside the United States. You must contact Support at least 72 hours before providing Coaching Services from within the United States, even if the change is temporary.

6.5 Not Professional Advice

You may not provide services or recommendations requiring a professional licence or qualification, including legal, medical or financial advice. You must not create a professional client relationship with students and must treat sessions as educational rather than professional advisory services.

6.6 No Employment or Commercial Relationship

Participation in Coaching Services does not create employment, partnership, joint-venture or agency relations between you and Qrise. Qrise does not control the manner and means by which you conduct sessions, and you remain solely responsible for your coaching methods under these Terms.

6.7 Coaching Disclaimer

You acknowledge that you may interact with students whose conduct is outside Qrise's control. Qrise makes no representation or warranty regarding student conduct or readiness. Qrise is not liable for loss, damage or harm resulting from student misconduct. You accept the risks of interacting with students and agree to handle situations professionally and in accordance with these Terms and the Trust and Safety Guidelines. Coaching Services may use third-party videoconferencing and scheduling services, and Qrise is not responsible for their availability, security or stability. These disclaimers supplement the disclaimer provisions in the Terms of Use.

7. Trademarks

If you are a publishing instructor and meet the applicable requirements, you may use our trademarks only where we grant permission.

You must:

- use only the trademark images supplied by us and in accordance with any published guidelines;
- use our trademarks solely in connection with advertising and selling your Submitted Content on Qrise or your participation in Qrise activities; and
- immediately comply with a request to stop using them.

You must not:

- use our trademarks in a misleading or disparaging manner;
- use them in a way that suggests Qrise recommends, sponsors or endorses your Submitted Content or services; or
- use them unlawfully or in connection with obscene, indecent or illegal subject matter or content.

8. Deleting Your Account

Instructions for deleting an instructor account may be provided through Qrise support materials. We will use commercially reasonable efforts to process any remaining scheduled payouts before deletion. If students previously purchased access to your Submitted Content, your name and Submitted Content may remain available to those students after deletion. If you need help, contact the Support Centre.

9. Other Legal Terms

9.1 Updates to These Terms

We may update these Terms from time to time to clarify our rules or reflect new or different practices, including new features. Qrise may modify these Terms at its discretion. For material changes, we will provide notice by recognised means, such as email to the address linked to your account or a notice through the Services. Changes take effect on the date of publication unless otherwise stated.

Continued use of the Services after changes take effect means that you accept them. Revised Terms replace all prior versions.

9.2 Relationship Between the Parties

You and Qrise agree that no joint venture, partnership, employment, contractor or agency relationship exists between us.

9.3 Survival

The following sections survive expiration or termination of these Terms: Section 2 (Licence to Qrise), Section 3.3 (Relationship with Other Users), Section 5.3 (Receiving Payments), Section 5.4 (Refunds), Section 6 (Coaching Services), Section 8 (Deleting Your Account) and Section 9 (Other Legal Terms).

10. Contact Us

The best way to contact us is through our Support Service. We welcome questions, comments and feedback about our Services.